Deep Architecture

The depth of an architecture is a reason for unexpected behavior. Nested nonlinear transforms and information travelling multiple paths yield adaptive complexity that is source and solution to many problems.

deep composition, hierarchical representation, chaos, emergence, overparameterization, data hunger

Deep composition, nested transforms → powerful, flexible structure.

Depth leads to overfitting, bad generalization, „Emergence“ is illusion.

Increase the depth of the target card; let it act on itself.

"What does additional depth really buy you here - power, distraction, or escape?"

Masks upon masks gave the actor impossible grace and fluidity. Yet beneath the layers, the audience found nothing new, only the same gesture repeated in disguise.
