Error is currency. Surrendering truth is the price for power for every model. This does not mean all models are equally useless and faithless. But they all give up something important; no model is to be trusted blindly.

simplification, approximation, information loss, no-free-lunch, usefulness vs truth, Box's aphorism

Makes the model useful and focused.

Untruth justified as necessity.

Of target card, ask which two of its aspects engage in a zero-sum game.

"What did my model give up to function properly?"

Usefulness costs fidelity. Every model is a sacrifice.
