Will to adapt

A restart without erasure. Failed ideas and implementations are replaced with better approaches. Sometimes the renewal must extend deeper than just model adaptation and intent itself is revised.

learning, adaptation, model revision, strategic reset, adaptive intent, goal redefinition, sunk-cost fallacy

Enables learning at the level of purpose.

Endless restarting or fatal attachment to the past.

Ask if target card needs refinement — or replacement.

"Which of my beliefs would I abandon if the data would prove it wrong?"

Other paths remain. You step anyway. You keep what you learned. This is not retreat.
