Ethics

Ethics is not imposed; it is chosen restraint. A limit to one's own power in service of something higher than performance: fairness, responsibility, consequence. The model could do more. You decide it must not.

values, governance, responsibility, self-imposed constraints, purpose beyond objective anchors modeling in responsibility.

Overbinding paralyzes or defers all agency.

"What will I not do, even if I could? "

You could have done this. You chose not to. This limit is your end to neutrality.
